

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A transport and storage device including a cargo container, a system for positioning at least one removable storage module inside the container, and a system for releasably securing the positioned storage cabinet to the container. A door arrangement is provided for side access openings of the cargo container. The doors are moveable between closed positions and open positions where they provide full access to the access opening. In the open position, the doors are moveable to positions within the cargo container without interfering with the side access openings.